Cardinal Pride Weekend is part of bigger picture to promote Luverne

By Brenda Winter

The all-school reunion and Cardinal Pride festivities in Luverne in August were just a small part of a bigger picture, according to Luverne Area Chamber director Jane Lanphere.

"We looked at the event as a way to do community development," Lanphere said.

"There aren't better sales people in the world than those who know the community. The best promotion you can get is to bring people back to their hometown to see the changes going on. We wanted to do that and we think we did."

She said more than 100 people took trolley rides around town to view recent improvements in the community.

"We showed them how great everything looks and the work that is being done on different buildings and locations," Lanphere said.

She said she hopes those who visited Luverne will tell their friends,

"This is a cool town to spend a couple of days in."

While there is no accurate way to count how many people came into town for the weekend, estimates approach 1,000.

"The restaurants were full. The hotels were full. People were walking and shopping on Main Street," Lanphere said.

"More than 100 people were hiking on Touch the Sky Prairie on Sunday."

She said she and others are trying to put together different ways of encouraging the idea of prairie tourism near Luverne.

"I think the prairie is really an untapped resource. What if we could schedule regular prairie walks and promote them in our visitors' guide? Could we build on this idea of 'eco travel?'" Lanphere asked.

"Could we put together a package that included a prairie-themed meal at a restaurant, and a prairie hike? Maybe a photographer could guide photography tours based on different plants or flowers that are in season on the prairie?" Lanphere said.

"People have great ideas. I think if we do it right, we can put it all together and be very successful."

What We've Heard . . . Compiled by Jane Wildung Lanphere

Bob Drost (LHS 1947) sends an update from their home in Kansas City:

I just received the latest Alumni News and enjoyed receiving the information. I noted the form used to update ones information but did not see a convenient way to complete it and send via email - probably due to lack of skill using email.

For your information - I was in the class of 1947. I served in the Air Force from 1951 through 1955. Following my service tour I briefly worked on a ship making runs between Tampa, Florida and Ecuador. On the return trips I observed the U.S. Customs officers and thought the job would be interesting. Eventually I was able to become a customs officer and made customs my main career in life. After serving at sea ports, a Canadian border port as the port director, in Kansas City, Missouri as the port director, I retired from customs as the Asst. District Director in St. Louis for a brief period until becoming eligible for retirement which I did so I could return to Kansas City.

Following my U.S. Customs career I became president of the Kansas City Foreign-Trade Zone Corp. I served in that position for several years and then formed a consulting firm, International Consulting Service. We provided service related to foreign-trade zones, international marketing, etc. As part of the service we contracted with private parties, communities, and customs modernization programs in Bangladesh and Egypt. During this period my son and I began farming, we have several farms in west-central Missouri on which we produce corn and soybeans.

My wife, since 1957, is Jo Jansen, she was originally from

THE BIG BROWN LUVERNE

Manufactured by
THE LUVERNE AUTOMOBILE CO.
Luverne, Minn.

Committee organizes to 'Bring the Car Home'

Showroom in new History Center — Ford Motor Company on Main Street — is proper place for a restored Luverne Automobile

THE CAR THAT HAS OUR NAME – THE LUVERNE AUTOMOBILE COMPANY

This is how it all began:

HEADLIGHT magazine was published in the late 1890's. It served as a community advertisement to encourage people to settle in Luverne. This is what it had this to say about the Leicher Brothers:

Proprietors of the Luverne Wagon Works.
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in Hardwood Lumber.
Carriage Painting and Trimming.
Water Tanks a Specialty.

"This carriage and wagon manufactory is one of the most enterprising houses in this branch of industry. With every facility for the work, with an extensive experience and a thorough acquaintance with every detail of carriage and wagon building, with a large and well-equipped shop, it is able to turn out all kinds of carriages, buggies, wagons and light vehicles on short notice. Wherever the work is known it is acknowledged to be superior in every way. Good work is a specialty with this house."

"This is one of the most complete shops of the kind in this part of the country. The works are perfectly equipped with tools, lathes and all the necessary appliances for repairing machinery of all kinds, no matter how difficult or intricate, and guarantee all work to give entire satisfaction."

"These young men came here from Wisconsin and succeeded to this business four years ago, and have proven a valuable acquisition to the town and country around. Personally these enterprising gentlemen are of high character, strict integrity, honorable and reliable in all their transactions, and in every way trustworthy and responsible."

From that auspicious start, Leicher Brothers developed into some of Luverne's most prestigious and impressive manufacturing businesses. In 1903, Al and Ed formed the Luverne Automobile Company. Around October 1903, Henry Bierkamp, a good wagon customer of the Leichers, surprised them by informing them that he was not going to purchase another buggy. He told them that he had been reading about the new-fangled gas buggies and had decided to buy one.

This started Al Leicher thinking that maybe they should get in on the ground floor in the building of automobiles. The auto arrived in November and since it was the first car in Rock County. Nobody really knew anything about it. Henry Bierkamp asked the Leichers if they would take charge of unloading the machine and learning how to operate it. When it arrived on the train, the entire crew from the buggy factory was there to greet it. They attached ropes in every direction, with some men pulling and some holding it back in case it decided to run off on them, because none of them really knew what it was supposed to do. Al Leicher's 7 year old son, Bob, was set inside to steer it as they towed it to the carriage factory.

The Leichers studied it until the end of December 1903 and together with Henry Bierkamp, they decided to build automobiles in Luverne. By the end of March, the company completed their first touring car with a 10 horse-power, double cylinder, gas engine. A second car with a single cylinder engine was completed in May. By August, Bierkamp sold his interests to A. D. LaDue, president of the local bank, and J. A. Kennicott, an attorney.

One of their first sales was to a local doctor by the name of Wright. Dr. Wright's new car was a surrey type with a 10 horse-power engine which would reach a maximum speed of twenty-five miles an hour. Within a few years, the Luverne Automobiles were receiving acclaim from auto experts in the area.

In November 1906, the company was incorporated and reorganized with an authorized capital of $50,000. All of the stock was purchased by about 12 Luverne businessmen. The new stockholders quickly got to work on the job of developing and improving the company. In late February 1907, the site for a large factory was purchased. Plans for a two-story brick structure with a full basement were announced. One year later the factory was completed and the company had started to operate from the Maple Street location. The basement was used for constructing the machines. The second floor was used for finishing purposes and the first floor was for displaying and storing the machines.

In 1907 the company sold every car it was able to build. The company continued to improve with each new automobile design. In December 1908, they had received their first four cylinder Rutenber motor, recognized as the best four cylinder motor in the United States. This was used for model 1909, the "Luverne Forty."

By 1909 the company made the decision to focus on the demand from the public for larger touring cars. From this time on the Luverne cars progressed quickly into one of the finest automobiles of the day. The Leichers introduced such things as self-starters, electric headlights and solid German silver radiators which became standard in the Luverne cars.

The company also took on special projects. In 1912, the City of Luverne decided they wanted a fire engine with a motorized pumper. At that time the only place that could manufacturer this type of fire engine was in New York. The city elders approached Al Leicher and asked him if it was possible for them to build a fire engine. The Leichers were glad to try anything and so they went ahead. They built what turned out to be a very successful fire engine. This was, of course, a sideline to automobiles. The chassis they used for the fire engine was a big touring car chassis.

During WWI, Luverne Automobile Company responded to the needs of America by producing farm trucks. With major manufacturing focusing on the war effort, the agriculture community needed trucks for their work. The Leichers form the Luverne Motor Truck Company, using many of the methods they had learned when they manufactured the fire truck for the City of Luverne. The company also manufactured the first motorized hearse in the Midwest.

Dick and Clarice Herman, Luverne, own one of three Luverne Automobiles that have been identified around the country.

Following WWI and the introduction by Henry Ford of mass production, the Leichers could see that it was going to be impossible to compete with Detroit auto manufacturing. By 1928, the Fire Apparatus Company was formed to begin another new venture in manufacturing. Eventually, the Luverne Automobile Company died out as did all the other early small town manufacturers.

Intelligence, hard work, ability to adapt and foresight kept the company moving ahead for decades. Sons Bob and Jim continued operation of the Fire Apparatus Company until the 1970's. The company was sold out of the family to Dominic Lippi and A. R. Woods Manufacturing. Within a few years it was sold again and eventually moved to Brandon, SD when city officials decided not to respond to the request of the owners for "business incentives." Luverne Fire Apparatus was purchased by Crimson Fire and remains a large manufacturer of fire equipment.

Committee forms to 'Bring the Car Home' to Luverne's History Center on Main Street

The story of the history of the Luverne Automobile Company came to an end but that doesn't mean the interest in Luverne cars has died along with it. Luverne resident, LHS 1970 alumni and Leicher great-granddaughter – Tanya Light has kept the story of the Luverne Automobile Company alive. Over the past years, Tanya has carefully collected and archived the history, stories and information about the company and its machines. She is a great source of information for history and car enthusiasts.

This is where the story takes on a new twist.

Many of you have heard about the exciting news from the Rock County Historical Society about the purchase of the Herman Motor Company Building on Main Street. Owners Joel and Kellie (Remme) Herman began work on their new dealership on Highway 75 in late September. Within the next couple of years, the Rock County Historical Society will have a building on Main Street with a showroom built for a car.

This showroom creates the opportunity to get one of those great Luverne autos back to its home!

Just imagine, driving through Main Street to see a car from the early 20th century standing only a block from where it was originally constructed. Imagine the looks on people's faces when they stop in to see "our community's own – LUVERNE AUTO."

Over the past several months, people in Luverne have begun to dream about "bringing one of those cars home." Something we could have on display and be proud of. Thanks to information from Tanya Light, three Luverne Autos have been identified around the country. One is right here in Luverne and owned by Dick and Clarice Herman. The other two are located in Minnesota and Missouri. Two of the vehicles are for sale.

Right now a committee is being put together to look into whether or not this could or should happen. There are a lot of things that need to be discussed.

What is the value of the vehicles?

What is the condition of the vehicles?

What restoration would have to be completed?

Who would have title to the vehicle?

How would it be maintained?

How could it be displayed?

What would be the purchase price?

Should the community try to purchase a vehicle?

How would it be paid?

Etc.

Today technology offers people around the country the opportunity to work together on projects. Email, conference phone calls, and video-conferencing are just some of the ways to make long-distance committees possible. So, the call is out! Join our "Bring the Car Home Committee." Contact the Chamber at luvernechamber@co.rock.mn.us or call 507 283-4061 for additional information.

The Rock County Historical Society will move from its Freeman Avenue location to the Herman Motors building in downtown Luverne once the Ford dealership moves to its new facility on South Highway 75.

The Herman facility was built in the early 1900s and will require renovation and remodeling before the move can take place.

The History Center, as it's being called, will provide larger learning spaces for groups, meet handicap accessibility standards and improve access to historical records, memorabilia and computerized records and research materials.

It will also allow for the expansion of permanent and rotating exhibits, temperature-controlled storage, preparation areas for exhibit development and additional public parking. Plans include an outside atrium and public green space.

"One of the biggest benefits is greater public exposure," said Greg Burger, Rock County Historical Society Fundraising Committee Chair.

"The Main Street location and building design will give the public a window into the past."

Mann said it will be a great day for Rock County when the new building is ready.

"I'm looking forward to the exposure downtown; more space and handicap accessibility really is so important," she said.

"We have struggled over the years to find a place that's better situated than where we are."

A fundraising drive is underway to encourage residents and others with an interest in preserving the county's past to support the initiative by making a contribution to the $900,000 project. According to Mann, the group has raised $350,000 so far, not counting help from the city and county.

The project cost includes purchase of the building, interior renovations and remodeling, exterior and green space, parking improvements and display and exhibit development.

Established to preserve and protect the documents and artifacts, the society has collected historical books, writings, photographs, tools and county records, making them available to residents and visitors.

The History Center, as it's called, will be the new home of individual displays of the 10 communities of Rock County, including stories of their schools and businesses.

According to Mann, that history matters. "We cannot live in the past," Mann has often said. "But by studying the past, we can learn from it."

To support the project, donors can contact Emily (Bowron) Crabtree, director of the Luverne Area Community Foundation, which is serving as the fiscal host. She can be reached at emily@luvacf.org or 507-220-2424.

Mark Wessels and Kazumi were able to revisit the school on Friday night, tour around Luverne on Saturday and visit one of Kazumi's favorite teachers, Dan Smith. Smith is now retired and lives in Sioux Falls.

His summer adventure also included taking photographs helpful for English educators. His summer excursion also took him to visit a close college friend who is now living in Peru. Other adventures included a visit to Lima, Nazca and Macchu Pichu.

Teachers, friends and classmates are invited to contact him at: ishizaki-kazum@esnet.ed.jp.

Betsabe had the opportunity to visit with classmates – Mason

Capistran, Katie Shearer, Britton Stratton, Courtney Hemme and Morgan Sommner.

Melanie, Keith and their daughter Ashley Petersen Hunt along with grandson Kingston attended Mitchell Brinkman and Stephanie Baloun's wedding in Whitefish, MT.

They traveled from the wedding to Edmonton, Alberta (Canada) to see Mariana Ca'ceres. They were able to spend a few days with Mari before returning to Luverne. Mari was originally from Brazil and currently lives in Edmonton with her husband Tiago.

Alumni News received this letter from Isabelle Goodale DeBoer (LHS 1934):

"Thank you for the News we receive so regularly. This recent issue is particularly sweet for me in that I read two items of classmates.

It's nearly forty years since I left Minnesota and the Alumni News has been my only source of news about Luverne. Thank you for keeping me connected to my hometown!"
