Luverne is turning 150

Community gears up to celebrate landmark birthday

Over the next couple of years, the Luverne 150 Committee will be sharing a series of articles that will offer highlights of what has happened ever since our founding in 1867. This first article includes the story of this area when it was still a territory, prior to Luverne's settlement. Stay tuned and learn about this place we call "home."

(Information for this article has been taken largely from Arthur Rose's history of Rock & Pipestone Counties that was published in 1911)

When the first white man set foot in Rock County, the topography was practically the same as we find it today. There were the same broad rolling prairies stretching as far as the eye could see. Summer burst forth presenting a perfect paradise of verdure, with variegated hues of flowers and vegetation. Winter created a stark white, snow-mantled desert. Rivers and creeks flowed through the county making their way south to the Gulf of Mexico. Vacant was any body of large water.

Wild beasts, birds and Native Americans reigned supreme. Vast herds of bison, elk and deer roamed the open prairie and reared their young in the more sheltered places among the banks of the many streams and tributaries.

It wasn't until 1838 that the first record of white man visiting Rock County has been found. This was Joseph Nicolas Nicolle. Nicolle explored the area and drew the first authentic map of the county.

What We've Heard
Compiled by Jane Wildung Lanphere

Larry Engel (LHS 1956) sends greetings from his new address in Sioux Falls. He writes: "I look forward to Alumni News. I have fond memories of LHS and remember my classmates still with us, those gone on, and the teachers & coaches. Rock on Cardinals!"

Joan (Padilla) Ripley (LHS 1954) shares her thoughts from her home in Cypress, TX: "Thanks for the continued good effort in producing Alumni News. I have told my grandchildren many times about the 10 cent double matinees at the Palace on Saturday afternoons. Gloria mentioned the absence of treats which kept the theatre pristine. When you see the debris left in theatres today, you realize what a smart decision that was. It was a real lesson in having pride in keeping up your establishment though I have to admit I love having popcorn at the movies. Keep up the good work!"

Writing from her home in Sioux Falls, Mavis (Winge) Amundson (LHS 1950) writes that she still loves coming to Luverne. "I have been to Sterling's Café and The Bluestem several times and really enjoy dining at both first-class restaurants. I hope Luverne will continue to support both of them."

Cleo and Ellen Kjenslee always look forward to receiving their copy of Alumni News in their home in Mankato, MN. "We enjoy the Alumni News very much. We look forward to hearing about our home town people." Ellen was an elementary teacher in Luverne and Cleo had "Kjenslee Upholstery" in Luverne for many years.

"I have really enjoyed the articles on the Palace Theatre. It brings back so many fun memories," write Pat (Hatting) Phillips (LHS 1959) from her home in Tempe, AZ.

Carol (Underwood) Huckins (LHS 1967) sends a message of thanks to Alumni News. "I came to my first class reunion in 2012 (thanks to the urging of Kris Fitzer) and really enjoyed myself! It was awesome to see so many of my classmates I hadn't seen in 45 years! I am retired now, just recently a widow and live in Hammond, Indiana. I am still trying to figure out what I am going to do with myself now. My children and grandchildren are keeping me busy and trying to keep me from being bored. Thank you for making the Alumni News so interesting and informative."

Lauren (LHS 1950) and Janice Strassburg send greetings to all of their Luverne Alumni friends. Janice writes: "Lauren and I will celebrate our 60th anniversary this November and all is well. He is a 3 year survivor of lung cancer and is serving on the Board of our HOA here in Sun City Tucson. We love Arizona."

Betty J. Justin (LHS 1946) sends greetings to Luverne Alumni from her home in New Brighton, MN.

"Where do the years go? After graduating from LHS I went on to graduate from St. Olaf in 1950. I received my Masters in counseling and physical education in 1968 from St. Thomas. I spent two years teaching in California and 31 years in Columbia Heights. I retired in 1991 and began my passion for travel. My friend Helen Quanback and I spent 10 years touring the world, tutoring ESL & GED's."

"My legs began to wearing I so I became a "couch potato" for some of the time. I did go to all my granddaughter's horse events, school activities and athletic contests. Now, I am semi-homebound slowly but surely getting where I have to go but that is about it. No more trips to Luverne anymore...and I really miss that. The word "old" does come to mind. Greetings to all!"

Happy 150th to our hometown!

Mark your calendars and plan a trip in July 2017 when Luverne celebrates its 150th birthday. The Luverne 150 Committee met in late September to select a date and adopt the official logo.

The Luverne 150 Committee is being coordinated through the Luverne Area Chamber. Any interested Luverne Alumni are invited to contact us and be included on the development of the celebration which will include special activities throughout the year with an “official birthday party” slated for July 14, 15 and 16, 2017.

Why did Luverne 150 Committee select that weekend? They decided that would be the perfect time to have the party because the night before (Thursday – July 13) will be the celebration of Luverne’s 55th Annual Hot Dog Nite.

Nothing can beat that! You can come a day early and get a free dinner courtesy of Luverne Area Chamber members – enjoy the wiener dog events, watch or participate in the Wienerman Triathlon, and enjoy live music on Main Street!

The Committee will begin to develop specific events and plans for the weekend that will include a hometown parade, fireworks and maybe a “party at the park.”

Watch for updates in the coming editions of Alumni News. If your class is planning a reunion, you might want to take note and plan your special event during the celebration.

Warn your relatives that this might be a great time for a family reunion.

The Luverne 150 Committee is excited to invite everyone – friends, neighbors, relatives, alumni and visitors – to take part in the celebration.

Luverne has a lot to be proud of – PAST, PRESENT and FUTURE – and 150 years makes it the perfect reason to celebrate!

Stories were told to early explorers of the region that Native Americans rounded up bison and drove them over the precipices of the mounds, sending them to their deaths. Native American women and children stood below to quickly make use of every part of the dead bison.

Little information exists about the history of the Native Americans of the area. According to the accounts in Rose’s history, there were “two great tribes” that occupied Minnesota. The Ojibways held the north wooded half of the state and the Sioux held the prairie.

There were three great tribal division of the Sioux; names the Isantis who resided about the headwaters of the Mississippi; the Yanktons who occupied the region north of the Minnesota River and the Titowans who lived west of the Yanktons. These tribes were further divided into other, smaller bands.

When many of the Native Americans were driven from Minnesota in the early 1800s, the Yankton branch of the Sioux nation claimed the extreme southwestern portion of Minnesota. They trapped and hunted over it extensively prior to the Sioux War of 1862 when they were driven into Dakota.

There is scant information about the Native Americans of the area. One account provides information about a battle between two tribes of Indians fought on the west bank of the Rock River in the southwest quarter of Section 16 in Battle Plain Township (a few miles northwest of Kenneth).

The battle was said to have occurred in 1840 between the Ponca and Yankton Indians. It lasted four days when the Yankton Tribe was the victor.

Early settlers found marks of earthworks and other markings.

There was an enclosure 200 by 175 feet (described as egg-shaped) surrounded by a series of irregular pits from 2 to 3 ½ feet deep and 10 to 12 feet in length. Weapons, human bones and other Native American artifacts were found at the spot.

Although the first explorers to Minnesota came in the late 1600s, it wasn’t until 1838 that the first record of white man visiting Rock County has been found. This was Joseph Nicolas Nicollet.

Nicollet explored the area and drew the first authentic map of the county. With his party Nicollet visited the Pipestone quarries in July 1838 and carved his name and the initials of his party, with the date, in the rock at that place.

Proof that he or some of his men visited Rock County during the years of his explorations is evidenced by the fact that several natural features of the county were given names and quite accurately located for the first time.

The Rock River was labeled

“Inyan Reakah” or “River of the Rock” and is shown flowing into the “Tcankasndata” or “Big Sioux.” The principal tributary of the river was labeled “Karanzi R.” or “River where the Kansas were killed” – which we now call Kanaranzi Creek.

Farther north and also coming in from the east are two other tributaries of the Rock labeled “Tchan-Pepedan R.” or “Thorny Wood River” – which we now call Chanpepedan and “Tchan-Narambe C.” or “Hidden Wood Creek” – which we now call Chanarambie.

For several years after the visit of Nicollet the area was visited by white men only occasionally. In 1849, the United States Congress created the Minnesota Territory. The fact that the land west of the Mississippi was still in undisputed ownership of the Sioux delayed the settlement.

In 1851 President Millard Fillmore, at the solicitation of residents of the Minnesota territory who were clamoring for admission to the rich soil of the west, directed that a treaty with the Sioux be made.

The treaties (which were signed in 1852) gave the Sioux title to the land on the north side of the Minnesota River and the rich, fertile soil of southwestern Minnesota opened for settlement. The Minnesota Territory purchased land in Rock County from the Sioux for the lowest price per acre it ever sold for – twelve and one-half cents per acre. (The highest price per acre land was ever sold for in Rock County was recorded in December 2012 - $16,200/acre...a “slight” increase one might say.)

Later that same year, Warner Lewis (Surveyor General of Iowa) ran the line between the Iowa and Minnesota territory. They started at the southwest corner of the county about the first of August, planted an iron post marking the boundary line, and proceeded on their way eastward, completing the line across the southern boundary of Rock County on August 5, 1852. Rock County did not receive permanent settlers until the late 1860s.

Oldest known Rock County resident, 1929 Luverne High School grad, dies at 104

June 4 Hills Crescent

Martha Ingebord Lunde Bakken, the oldest known resident in Rock County, died Thursday, May 28, at Sanford Hospital in Sioux Falls at the age of 104 years and 16 days.

Martha was born to Nels and Emma (Rossum) Lunde in Luverne Township May 12, 1911, and was a lifelong resident of Rock County. Martha grew up on a farm several miles southwest of Luverne, attended a one-room school which was in District 13 in Rock County, and attended high school in Luverne. She would stay "in town" during the week and go home on weekends. After graduating from high school she attended Normal School, which was a one-year program in Luverne.

Here are some memories Martha recalled in 1994 of her teaching experiences in the 1930's:

"I graduated from Luverne High School in June 1929 and then enrolled in the Teacher's Training Department in Luverne. There were 12 to 13 girls," Bakken recalled. "The first two weeks were spent visiting observing rural schools in the county. The school day was from 8 am to 5 pm with no study period. We studied all the subjects taught in rural schools, including music and physical education. We even went out on cold winter nights to find the constellations."

She said they had classes in education subjects, then called pedagogy, and followed Minnesota Course of Studies. "Another thing we had to do was to write drills from Palmer Method Writing Book," she said. "We did practice our penmanship." In the spring the teachers in training began to apply for a school. "In those days there were more applicants than schools," Bakken recalled. "I was fortunate to know the members of the school board in District 4. This is how I got the school in 4E."

Martha Ingebord Lunde Bakken grew up on a farm several miles southwest of Luverne and attended a one-room school in District 13 in Rock County. She attended high school in Luverne, staying "in town" during the week and going home on weekends. She is pictured here for her Luverne High School graduation photograph in 1929.

She stayed with a family that lived a half-mile north of the school. "I walked morning and night. The house was so cold that water in the kitchen froze overnight," Bakken said. "I slept upstairs under a feather bed. That was warm. The first year I got $90 a month. During the Depression years the salaries went down."

After being there six years Bakken said she thought she needed a change.

"I got District 13, which was the school I went to as child. This was a small enrollment with only eight or nine students," she said. "I had to be the janitor as well as the teacher."

Bakken went to Mankato Teachers' College two different summers for six weeks. Two sessions of six weeks each in five years was required to renew certificates.

In 1941 she was united in marriage to Obed Bakken and the couple lived on a farm 10 miles west of Luverne, near the Palisade Lutheran Church. They had two sons, Howard and Richard. Martha's hobbies were gardening and needlework.

Martha enjoyed traveling to visit her sister, Nora, and family in Whitewater, Wisconsin. She also enjoyed trips to Yellowstone, Colorado, Florida, the Smokey Mountains, Mackinac Island in Michigan, Chicago and Connecticut, where she attended her son Howard's graduation and wedding.

Before her marriage she traveled to the World's Fair in New York and Chicago with close friends Tilda and Margaret Vegge. The ladies' trip to New York was for a month and they rented any apartment. A childhood friend, Sylvia Salvesen, formerly from Luverne, who had married a New Yorker and lived in Brooklyn, served as their tour guide.

Interested in creating a Dollars for Scholars Endowment?

A gift of $2,000 or more creates a perpetual scholarship with Luverne Dollars for Scholars. With a perpetual scholarship, only the interest earned during a one-year period of time is awarded each and every year thereafter to a most recent LHS qualifying graduate. The donor of such a gift is given the opportunity to name the scholarship. The scholarship is also included in the annual Luverne Dollars for Scholars Community Scholarship booklet. Not only does this booklet list the LHS graduates with their awarded scholarships, but it also includes a short write-up of each and every perpetual scholarship. The uniqueness of establishing a perpetual scholarship is that it allows a scholarship to be given each and every year, forever, to a fresh qualifying LHS graduate. Luverne DFS is recognized by the IRS as a 501(c)(3), therefore all gifts are tax deductible. You can contact Johnna Ahrendt at 507-227-4030 if you are interested in establishing a perpetual scholarship with Luverne Dollars for Scholars or email her at luvernedfs@gmail.com.

Lon Remme was the “bus boss” at Luverne Public Schools for 36 years. He retired at the end of the 2014-15 school year, effective June 30.

School transportation director retires

Perhaps Lon Remme’s phone greeting comes from his military experience but the gruff sounding “Bauhhs Gar-rahhhge” became a thing of the past on June 30.

That’s when the Luverne Public School District transportation director called it quits, retiring after 36 years on the job.

“It’s time to do other things,” the 67-year-old said.

Those things include spending more time with his wife, Donna, two children and six grandchildren. He also plans to spend more time making items out of leather and restoring the 1967 Camaro sitting in his garage.

As for the car project that has been waiting two years to complete, Remme has plenty of experience.

The Hardwick native grew up under the hood with his late father, Milford, who operated the town’s D-X Sun Royal Service Station.

It was his father, a bus driver for Luverne Public Schools in the late ’70s, who encouraged Remme to apply for the open district position.

While in the Marine Corps during the Vietnam War, Remme headed up the motor transport for his unit. After his discharge he came back to Luverne accepting jobs at A.R. Wood Manufacturing, Hanson Silo and the Luverne Announcer before being hired by the district.

As transportation director, not only does Remme oversee the district’s bus drivers and routes, he is also responsible for the regular maintenance and minor repairs on the fleet of vehicles, which has grown to include 22 buses, five Suburbans and two passenger cars.

“If it gets too technical, then I farm it out,” he said.

When Remme started in November 1979, his responsibilities were considerably less.

“Back then they had eight drivers,” Remme said. “Now there’s 22 with subs.”

Finding enough drivers has been the hardest part of Remme’s job.

Regular routes have expanded from eight to 12 under Remme’s

The new location will provide handicapped accessible display and research space as well as offer a climate controlled facility to maintain the historic treasures of Rock County.

Work continues on History Center; roof requires additional funds

The Rock County Historical Society will move from its Freeman Avenue location to the Herman Motors building in downtown Luverne now that the Ford dealership has moved to its new facility on South Highway 75.

The Herman facility was built in the early 1900s and requires renovation and remodeling before the move can take place.

The fundraising campaign has met with “overwhelming support,” Betty Mann puts it.

Mann, Rock County Historical Society president, said a disappointing discovery along the way has been a deteriorated roof on the old Herman building that will require additional monies to fix.

“I’m hoping people continue to support the History Center effort,”

Mann said. “There is still a great deal of work that needs to be done, and donations are still needed.”

Tax-deductible contributions to the Rock County Historical Society can be sent to 123 N. Freeman Ave., Luverne, MN 56156.

The History Center will provide larger learning spaces for groups, meet handicap accessibility standards and improve access to historical records, memorabilia and computerized records and research materials.

It will also allow for the expansion of permanent and rotating exhibits, temperature-controlled storage, preparation areas for exhibit development and additional public parking. Plans include an outside atrium and public green space.

The project cost includes purchase of the building, interior renovations and remodeling, exterior and green space, parking improvements and display and exhibit development.

Established to preserve and protect the documents and artifacts, the society has collected historical books, writings, photographs, tools and county records, making them available to residents and visitors.

The History Center will be the new home of individual displays of the 10 communities of Rock County, including stories of their schools and businesses.

According to Mann, that history matters. “We cannot live in the past,” Mann has often said. “But by studying the past, we can learn from it.”

tenure, bringing about 600 students to and from school each day. Also added are regular routes taking students to and from classes in Sioux Falls plus the growth in traveling to sporting events.

Annually, the district vehicles travel an average 700,000 to 750,000 miles, he said.

During his tenure, however, none of those vehicles have been involved in any serious injury accidents, although he did have a scare within the first couple of years on the job.

A snowstorm in the early 1980s caught Remme and district officials by surprise and classes were not dismissed early enough to allow all the buses to complete routes before the snow accumulated. Remme said 11 out of the 12 buses were stuck out on the road that day.

“It wasn’t until 7 p.m. that I got the last one unstuck,” he said.

Now on possible snow days, Remme is checking conditions early — sometimes at 3 a.m. — driving roads to assess conditions. A 12-hour day is not an uncommon work schedule for Remme.

“I like the job. It’s a good job,” he said.

The early retirement notice allows the new director time to job shadow before taking over the reins from Remme. The district will accept applications until the position is filled.

Remme’s retirement on June 30 will signal a milestone for the Luverne High School Class of 1965 graduate.

“After 50 years I am finally going to get out of Luverne School District,” he said.

Brad Goembel took the reins as Luverne Public School's transportation director in May. Aug. 24 was his first day of organizing and scheduling the bus routes for more than 700 students who rely on district transportation to get to and from school.

LHS graduate takes over getting students to school on time, safely

By Mavis Fodness, Star Herald

Brad Goembel is no stranger to city and rural residents in the Luverne School District.

For 20 years Goembel was a driver at Ketterling Services Inc., Luverne, and through the years he grew familiar with local streets and addresses.

On May 1 he put this route experience to use in his new position as Luverne School District's transportation director.

Now he is connecting faces to the residents he only knew by name and address.

"This is only my second job since high school," said Goembel, a 1996 LHS grad.

Monday will mark the first day of school for Luverne students and the first test of Goembel's organization of the district's 12 bus routes.

Goembel said he was intrigued each time he picked up refuse from the bus garage on West Dodge Street. He often talked with now-retired transportation director Lon Remme about bus maintenance and Remme's stepping down from the position he filled for 36 years.

"I was at the point of either choosing a different job or continue to work at (Ketterlings)," until retirement, Goembel said.

His wife, Tricia, three sons, Brody, 7, Rylin, 5, and Liam, 16 months, plus another child arriving in October prompted him to apply for Remme's position, where he could more easily attend school activities.

As transportation director, Goembel said he could now choose to drive the bus for his boys' teams to future away games.

Since beginning in the position this school year, Goembel said he was overwhelmed by the transportation needs of the district.

The last month of the school year ended with more than a dozen buses needed for field trips conducted the same day.

"It was very hectic," he recalled.

The summer months allowed Goembel to familiarize himself with each of the bus routes he rode before school ended, and now he can easily add new families into the routes.

He has also serviced each of the district's vehicles in preparation for next week.

Assisting Goembel has been the district's newest bus driver, Remme, who continues to assist Goembel as he settles into the position. Remme has not been the only one easing Goembel into the job.

"I have a great set of drivers," he said.

The drivers have been contacting families on their routes, affirming pickup and drop-off times plus locations for the new school year.

Goembel said a future challenge will be helping to determine if road conditions warrant postponement or cancellation of classes.

"I hope we have a good winter," he said.
